GROUP FOUNDATION FOR ADVANCING MENTAL HEALTH ANNOUNCES THE AVAILABILITY OF RESEARCH GRANTS TO SUPPORT CLINICAL RESEARCH REVIEWS THAT DEMONSTRATE THE EFFECTIVENESS OF GROUP PSYCHOTHERAPY

NEW YORK, October 17, 2022— The Group Foundation for Advancing Mental Health announced that funds are available to support original critical research reviews, either qualitative or quantitative (particularly meta-analyses), that focus on some selected area of group psychotherapy.

More specifically, the Group Foundation is interested in reviews of studies of:

- Treatment outcome either for selected clinical issues (e.g., depression) or cost-effectiveness
- Specific process-outcome relationships (such as the association between interpretative work and outcome)
- Specific group formats and approaches (such as psychoeducational groups for stress management)
- Individual differences that impact group treatment (such as race/class/gender or member attachment)
- Comparisons of group therapy to other forms of treatment

Grants of up to $5,000 may be awarded, depending upon the significance and quality of the proposal to the field and the number of grant applications received.

“The Group Foundation is dedicated to supporting the advancement of research in group psychotherapy,” said Darryl L. Pure, Ph.D., ABPP, CGP, AGPA-F, Chair of the Group Foundation. “As part of this mission, we are pleased to be able to support research that demonstrates the effectiveness of group therapy for various patient populations and diagnoses.”

The deadline for receipt of grant applications is November 1, 2022. Online submission is required; the application and other relevant information may be found here. For more information, please contact Diane Feirman, CAE, at (212) 297-2143 or via e-mail at dfeirman@agpa.org.

About AGPA and the Group Foundation

The American Group Psychotherapy Association (AGPA) is the foremost professional association dedicated to the field of group psychotherapy, operating through a tri-partite structure: AGPA, a professional and educational organization; the Group Foundation for Advancing Mental Health, its philanthropic arm; and the International Board for Certification of Group Psychotherapists, a standard setting and certifying body. AGPA represents over 1,600 mental health professionals, including psychologists, psychiatrists, and social workers, as well as mental health, family, and pastoral counselors, many of whom have been recognized as specialists through the Certified Group Psychotherapist credential. Its members are experienced mental health professionals leading psychotherapy and non-clinical groups. Many organizational specialists work with businesses, not-for-profit organizations, communities, and other "natural" groups to help them improve their functioning. The Association also has 18 local and regional Societies located across the country.

AGPA is committed to supporting every individual's dignity and psychological safety without discrimination regarding race, ethnicity, gender, religion, sex, age, or disability. Central to our mission is a belief in the power of groups to treat mental illness, heal the scars from traumatic events, and enhance the well-being of adults and children in their families, schools, corporate settings, and communities.

The Group Foundation for Advancing Mental Health is a philanthropic organization committed to the fact that "Groups Change Lives" and believes in the power of group interventions to improve people's quality of life. The Group Foundation supports group psychotherapy education, research, training, and information dissemination to benefit the public and professional communities. The Foundation's most vital role is recognizing excellence, promise, and vision by honoring those individuals and groups who have demonstrated these qualities with awards and scholarships.
